

URGES MEXICO AND U. S. TO GET TOGETHER

Douglas, Ariz., Dec. 25.—President Obregon of Mexico could render the interests of the United States and Mexico as identical as possible, according to Douglas, who has arrived here.

The new president of Mexico, so stated a few days ago at El Paso, in an interview which he gave to W. D. King, Douglas attorney, and personal friend of Obregon, according to King, who has arrived here.

Obregon also stated that his government would take no action in labor controversies except where some group to the contrary infringes upon the rights of another.

President Obregon said he had no quarrel with the American congress, the senate, the judiciary, the press, or the people, as well as laws that were not antithetical.

Believes Interests Identical.

"Gen. Obregon stated that he believes that the interests of the United States and Mexico are identical and that the two countries should work in perfect harmony."

"With reference to the labor troubles in the country, he stated that in his opinion there is no necessary connection between the two countries, namely, brains, capital and labor, that neither of these could be taken from the other, that if any two of these were to be taken from the other, it would be to the detriment of the industrial system."

He compared these factors to industry to the United States government, stating that in both cases all must cooperate absolutely in order to accomplish any purpose.

"He stated that when he was advised that certain laborers intended striking, he rolled back his chair, and that on the other hand, when he was advised that an employer refused to raise wages, he replied that it was his right to do so."

Obregon's Meddling in Labor Disputes.

He said he did not intend to govern any group or groups of laborers, but to govern the country as a whole. He said he hoped that the people of Mexico would not realize that there was a government, meaning that the government would take no action in labor questions, except where some group to the contrary infringes upon the rights of another.

RANCH OWNER FEARS DRY LAW INCLUDES SILO

Phoenix, Ariz., Dec. 25.—Whether fermentation of silage could render the owner of a silo liable to a charge of violation of the national prohibition act is a question raised by state tax commissioner C. M. Sander in a letter to attorney general Wiley E. Jones, asking for an opinion. The letter follows:

"About a year ago I contemplated the erection of a silo at my ranch at Backers. In my investigations of the subject, I learned a few startling things that did not appear in the usual observer."

"In the first place, I learned that during the process of silage making, a high content of alcohol is developed. This alcohol is not in the silage, but in the silage itself. I also observed that a large number of silos in the valley were not in use."

"I further added to the equation the fact that national prohibition was in force in this valley, and in connection with these facts, the location of my silo, in plain view of the highway, became significant."

"I am asking you for an opinion as to whether this silo must be destroyed. If you do not feel justified in taking such action, I suggest that I might build this silo and fill it and that the silage be used for silage."

"The several stages of process the contents must undergo."

Obregon's Meddling in Labor Disputes.

He said he did not intend to govern any group or groups of laborers, but to govern the country as a whole. He said he hoped that the people of Mexico would not realize that there was a government, meaning that the government would take no action in labor questions, except where some group to the contrary infringes upon the rights of another.

The flash of excitement was over in the little top floor home of Winnie Winkle. The exchange of presents and her tender love for her mother and father had left Winnie feeling sentimental as she sat in the dimly lighted parlor with Simon Konthus. "Ain't that a funny fower!" said Simon, by way of saying something.

"Why, Simon dear," said Winnie softly, "that's a mistake. If a girl is ever under that she is liable to be kissed." And to illustrate Winnie arose and stood directly underneath the mistletoe. But Simon only sat there and laughed. "Gosh, Winnie," he said, "I don't believe in superstitions."

"Just the same, it's true," said Winnie, while she remained standing beneath the mistletoe. "I'm taking an awful chance of being kissed by standing here. But I'm not a bit scared!" "Huh?" retorted Simon. "Why should you be scared? There's no one here, only me. And you needn't be scared of me!"

Winnie exploded. "Well, you're the original Simple Simon, all right! Of all the dubs with the unbuttoned brains you call the Grand Prize! You know there's such a thing as being too much of a gentleman!" And with this Winnie flung haughtily out of the room, while poor Simon Konthus blushed so hard that he lit up the whole parlor.

"Living Dead" Of World War Given Help By Government; El Paso Man Helps Them Get It

By H. I. KIRBY.

HELP for the living dead has been a guiding principle enabling the government committee of the living dead to secure more than $10,000 in back compensation for service men who were killed in action.

Nathan Lapowski, city clerk and chairman of the committee, has been credited with securing a large amount of money for the living dead.

More than 2700 men have received money long past due from them from the government. Right here, Nathan Lapowski, city clerk and chairman of the committee, has been credited with securing a large amount of money for the living dead.

CONSTANTINE TELLS PLANS FOR REIGN

Athens, Greece, Dec. 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—King Constantine, dressed in the uniform of a general of the Greek army, apparently still wearied from his trip home from Switzerland, called in the American correspondents and gave them his first interview since he came back to Athens.

Constantine said that as far as he understood the situation, the Greek government would follow a conciliatory attitude toward the allies and that he did not expect a change in the cabinet at present.
